

Give your teams the tools they need to be ready.

Growing your business is a team effort. If your employees can't collaborate effectively, productivity can suffer. It's that simple.

The word is out: Collaboration systems are critical to business growth.

Businesses are realizing that collaboration systems aren't just important — they're essential.

Fifty-seven percent of managers from organizations with 1,000+ employees who participated in a five-country online survey during summer 2016 believe that messaging and collaboration systems are mission-critical today.¹

Ninety percent of IT decision makers in North America surveyed in March 2017 believe the presence of multiple collaboration tools has made employees more productive.²

Effective collaboration starts with the right tools.

When your teams have the right mix of collaboration tools, they can work faster and better to get the job done right.

Unlock productivity with file-sharing applications.

Putting the best file-sharing applications, chat and business phone systems in place is the trifecta that helps your employees work more effectively as a team — in the office or in the field.

One Talk — the Verizon mobile-first business phone system

One TalkSM from Verizon is flexible. It can be easily added to Android[®] and iOS phones or tablets. And employees can conference up to six people at once — so everyone has their say.

Features that keep business moving and shaking

With One Talk, you get 50 business phone features, so your employees have everything they need to stay connected with each other, your partners and your customers.
